

ΑΧΑΡΝΗΣ- Ο ΑΡΙΣΤΟΦΑΝΗΣ ΠΟΥ ΓΥΡΙΣΕ ΑΠΟ ΤΑ ΘΥΜΑΡΑΚΙΑ

The story of this work by Dionyssis Savvopoulos is an incident which happened last Wednesday when I was trying to get my son to the preparatory school of Magounaki for his English lesson. It is like an αμαξάκι που έρχεται as Dionyssis Savvopoulos says. When I tried to go down to Anoiksews street at Pefka Sykies there was a big hole created by the workers who left it because they stopped the works and they put no signs. I tried to go left of this hole but when I tried to go over the pavement I got a flat tire. I had to go my son to the preparatory school since he had to write a midyear test next day. One of his writing lessons was about the movie 2012. I continued the trip and when I got onto Papanikolaou street I understood I had a flat tire. I stopped at Magounaki to leave my son and continued until Demokratias where there was enough space to park my car. Then I got out of my car and went to video club seven where I called the express service and changed my tire. At Demokratias street there is a gyros food shop Salingaros where we get gyros and a fish shop where we buy fish. I was wearing my pyjamas. The same day and hour Andreas Loverdos wearing a red tie announce that Miltiadis Evert died. When I went to Informatics Society of Geece as a member they told me that Evert wanted everyone who met him at the ministry to wear ties. A Math professor at highschool told us that when a teacher went to a Lyceum with a red tie a student told him that he is σαν Θερμόμετρο. (like a thermometer).

Details: Hasapis was my professor of Industrial informatics at the Aristotle University.
